Fathima

What gets me up in the morning is thinking about doing what I love. I was interested in math when I was in school, so that pulled me over to engineering.

The thing that people don't know about my job is the amount of work that we put in to get something done, it's not, necessarily related to engineering or operations and maintenance alone.

Petrofac has supported me by giving me various opportunities. It's not just sticking to one particular function, but it gives you an opportunity to try out different functions, different areas.

I would recommend people to work at Petrofac because they get to work in a lot of exciting projects. I do believe people make Petrofac because Petrofac wouldn't be the same place without its people.
