

#PeopleMakePetrofac

Andrew Carr

What makes me proud to work for Petrofac is the speed at which we can get things done. In my eight months I've been here, I've achieved more in those eight months than I could have possibly expected. If you ask anyone in a professional career, what's one of the things that they look for in a company is how well they are developed while they're working in that company, and I have a big responsibility to make sure that that's best in class.

My most memorable moment at Petrofac so far was launching Petrofac Academy. After 10 minutes of opening, we had our first visit from a super important client walking and seeing the facilities in Sharjah, and we were very, very proud and excited to show him. No two days are ever the same, and that's because of the people who work for the organization. So yes, people definitely make Petrofac.